HAYT'S DISMISSAL.

WASHINGTON, January 29.—Commissioner Hayt was to-day removed from office. The following is the letter from Secretary Schurz making the removal:

WASHINGTON, January 29.

Hon. E. A. Hayt, commissioner of Indian affairs:

SIR—It has become my duty to inform you the public interest demands a change in the commissionership of Indian affairs and that your further services in that office are dispensed with. Very respectfully,

C. SCHURZ, Secretary.

Upon inquiry it was stated on authority the committee of the board of Indian commissioners who have been investigating the charges against Hayt diligently and thoroughly, that no proof of any dishonest act or connection with corrupt practice on his part had been found and that the action indicated by the letter of Secretary Schurz was taken for the reason that Hayt had withheld from the department information which the department should have had.

Secretary Schurz on being examined, gave as a reason that Hayt had withheld from the department information which the department ought to have had. On the other hand it is quite as positively stated by other parties, that while the facts developed in the recent investigation may not have been regarded as sufficient ground on which to remove Hayt, they were of the most damaging character and had Secretary Schurz failed to remove him, other charges of still more serious nature would have been preferred. The Tribune's Washington special says the committee on the board of Indian commissioners who have been investigating the charges against Commissioner Hayt have been startled to find evidence of his having falsely represented in his public statements that he had brought the case of Agent Hart before the department of justice; also that Hayt and Inspector Hammond met by appointment in this city last Sunday. A letter was produced from Hammond to Agent Hart, of San Carlos, in which he informs the commissioners he has taken a bond in the Washington mine from Agent Hart. The Washington mine is claimed to be in the San Carlos reservation and is the same mine afterward bought from Hart by Edward Knapp, who is said to be a nephew of Commissioner Hayt and a member of his family. It is reported that Hammond will appear again before the committee this week and is determined not to be made scapegoat if he can help it.

COLORADO SCHOOL LANDS.

The secretary of the interior has prepared a report on the bill recently introduced in the senate by Senator Hill of Colorado, to indemnify that state for the loss of certain sections of lands which were granted to it by the general government for school purposes, but which have since been found to be mineral land and which, therefore, by the law, reverted to the United States. Senator Hill's bill proposes to allow the state to select other sections of land in place of those of which it has been deprived. The secretary of the interior says that in order to indemnify the state some such legislation is necessary and he further recommends that some time be fixed by law after which the lands granted shall pass into the possession of the state unconditionally.

A BIG SCHEME.

Senator Gordon submitted a resolution that a committee of nine senators be appointed to take into consideration the subject of the construction of a canal to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and that all papers, documents, and information relating to the subject be referred to said committee, and that it be authorized to confer concurrently with any similar committee of the house, and be authorized to employ clerks. In absence of objection the chair declared the resolution adopted. Senator Davis, of West Virginia, called attention to the great number of special committees appointed during the present session, and the expense thus incurred. He asked if one of the regular committees could not do the work. Senator Gordon said, "No."

NORTH CAROLINA FOR GRANT.

A special from Raleigh, North Carolina, says the republican state convention will meet here to-morrow. Every member will be present. It is now indicated that the committee will appoint four delegates at large to the Chicago convention, and that the republican committees of congressional districts will appoint the other sixteen. The four at large will undoubtedly be for Grant for president.

SETTLING AN OLD ACCOUNT.

The senate postoffice committee reported to the senate the joint resolution to pay certain southern mail contractors for services prior to May 31, 1861, it being shown that neither the confederacy nor the United States had paid them.

TERRITORIAL GOVERNMENT FOR ALASKA.

The Star Washington special says the propriety of establishing a territorial form of government for Alaska will be considered by the senate this winter. The sub committee of the committee has been taking testimony of a person named Elliott who has his headquarters at the Smithsonian Institute. He said he was employed by the Fur Seal company during the summer. Elliott is opposed to the organization of a territorial form of government in Alaska. The Fur Seal company is also opposed to such a government. Senator Butler who is chairman of the sub committee on investigating the question says he thinks the people of Alaska should be given some form of government for the protection of their lives and property. He has been informed that under an established government, there would be considerable immigration to Alaska.

BRIEF MENTION.

The excess of exports over imports for the twelve months ending December 31st, amounts to $251,350,477.

The treasury department purchased to-day 615,000 ounces of fine silver for the mints at Philadelphia, New Orleans and San Francisco.

Senator Kernan introduced a bill to provide for the celebrating of the one hundredth anniversary of the treaty of peace and recognition of American independence by an exhibition of arts of manufacturers and products of the mines in New York in 1883.

The democrats of the senate all voted to reject the nomination of Kutchin for collector in Wisconsin on the ground of violence of language used by his paper in denouncing the democracy. It has generally been considered that the articles were ironical.

Fleecing the Central Pacific Stock.

NEW YORK, January 29. The Times says the first installment of 50,000 shares of the Central Pacific railway recently purchased from Huntington by Gould and others will be delivered to-day. It is announced that the shares will be offered to the public at once once at the price of between 80 to 85. The sale will probably be similar in all respects to the recent alleged sale of New York Central by the same parties. The Times however says the purpose of the syndicate was to make the Central Pacific an active stock on the exchange. Brokers not among the subscribers to the syndicate say there has been recently active inquiry for stock but there was little afloat in the market.

SALE OF THE STOCK.

The stock exchange in the early hours was the scene of great excitement and the subject of it was Central Pacific stocks. Yesterday public notice was given by the committee of the syndicate which bought 50,000 shares of the Central Pacific stock with a privilege of 50,000 more, that some would be publicly sold in the ordinary way at the opening of the stock exchange this morning. The Evening Post says the syndicate employed five brokers giving each an order to sell 10,000 shares on the scale of a fraction of 80 up to 85. As soon as the hammer of the presiding officer dropped at ten o'clock and business was formally opened, there was such a rush in the Central Pacific crowd and it might have led a spectator to have believed some one in the crowd was throwing about five carat diamonds by the handful. The brokers had their coats torn and were in danger of having their bones broken. In fact the tumult was extraordinary, even for the exchange where excitement is the rule. The first sale was 81¼. There was then a rapid advance to 87½ inside of the first fifteen minutes. This was followed by a decline to 84¼ and at 10:20 with the price of 85, the five brokers had each executed his order, and the fifty thousand had been disposed of. The committee had refused private bids for a large amount of stock, and as one of the purposes of the sale by Huntington was to popularize the stock in this market, it was thought best to put every one seeking to buy on the same footing. Therefore the stock was put openly on the market. The crowd which surged around the sellers were so think and so eager that the pressure was really dangerous. One was observed with a collar ripped off. The wild confusion which prevailed has rarely been equaled in the stormy annals of the exchange. The average price was eighty four and a fraction. The syndicate would have been content, it is understood, if only the average of 82 had been obtained. The whole transaction is unequaled in the history of the stock market, and its successful result is generally the topic of course, due in Wall street.

A Cut Imminent.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 The contract between the Pacific Mail Co, the and overland railroads by which the steamship company received a subsidy for agreeing not to reduce the rates below those of the railway company's expired in May last. The Pacific Mail Co, after waiting in vain for a most favorable contract, has determined to put the passenger and freight rates between New York and San Francisco at low rates to prevent undercutting by the railroad and has made arrangements for additional carrying facilities between the two points.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

There is an open rupture between the Pacific Mail Steamship Co. and the Pacific railway, and a fierce competition in the Pacific slope freight is anticipated. The old contract expired in May by which the steamship company agreed to raise its passenger and freight tariff and to carry only heavy freight, the railroad companies guaranteeing 600 tons of freight, or about $55,000 a month. Since May there has been only an implied contract and the steamship company has relied on the power of the Union Pacific road to make good the payments and promise to make a new working agreement upon more favorable terms. Recently the Pacific Mail Steamship Co. made an arrangement for more extensive carrying facilities and under their agreement with the Panama railway company they claim in a circular to be issued to-morrow to the stockholders that they can afford to carry freight and passengers at a rate so low as to prevent being cut under by the railroads, and yet to save the loss of new schedule of passengers, the rates are $75 for cabin and $40 for steerage passengers, a reduction of over 30 per cent on the present rates. The steamship company gave notice to the Union Pacific manager a few days ago demanding a new contract as promised, and this claim being refused, or ignored, the competitive war has been declared in earnest. Of their ability to successfully compete, the circular states that since May the earnings have been sufficient to pay not only the floating indebtedness but a large portion of the two millions owed to the Panama railway company. The officers of the Union Pacific company denied to day that there had been any contract expressed or implied with the steamship company since May and that none was desired. However, this is known to be incorrect, as the Pacific Mail company have rejected several propositions from the railroad company to make a contract, as they were deemed to be against the interest of the Mail company.

The Maine Legislature.

AUGUSTA, January 29.—In the senate seven fusion senators appeared. They were cordially received and took their seats. Atwell and Patten of Penobscot said the interest of their constituents required their presence and however much might be said in regard to the position of affairs their duty was plain.

In the house twenty-two fusionists took their seats.

The finance committee began to-day the examination of the treasurer accounts of the present State Treasurer White, who will oppose no obstacle but will turn over his books and accounts to the new treasurer, Holbrook.

The military will break camp to-morrow. Several additional fusionists are expected to take seats in the legislature to-morrow. Everybody seems willing to accept the situation and absolute quiet is restored.

Ingersoll on Paine.

CHICAGO, January 29.—The new Music hall was crowded to its utmost capacity to-night, the audience having assembled to hear Col. Robt G. Ingersoll's lecture on Thomas Paine, his life and services to his country. Ingersoll talked briefly on the theological side of Paine's character, and dwelt for nearly two hours on his distinguished ability and patriotism as displayed during our troubles with France. The proceeds of the lecture, which are to be applied to a monument to Paine, were about fifteen hundred dollars, besides which a subscription was taken for the same object. The monument will be placed in one of the parks.

Billiards.

CHICAGO, January 29. A very fine four handed exhibition game of billiards was played here to-night between Sexton and Gallagher on one side and Schaefer and Daly on the other. 800 points was the regular game. The former won by a score of 800 to 778. The winners' average was 43 7-27, the losers' 29 24-26. Schaefer's average was 45¼, Sexton 34, Gallagher 25 11-13, and Daly 12 6-13. The other games will be played to-morrow and Saturday night.

Vindicating a Law.

NEW ORLEANS, January 29. The district attorney to day filed information against the principals and seconds in the Burke Hearsey duel. The principals were bailed in five hundred dollars each, the seconds two hundred and fifty each. The penalty under the law for fighting a duel is two hundred dollars fine and imprisonment of two years, and for seconds a hundred dollars fine and imprisonment—for one year.

Parnell in New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, January 29.—Parnell and Dillon addressed a large and enthusiastic meeting in this city, delegates being present from all over the state. Mayor Bigelow presided and Dr. Leonard Bacon delivered the welcome address. Over $1,500 were raised.

Presidential Rumors.

CHICAGO, January 29. The Inter Ocean's Washington special says even if General Grant's name is not withdrawn from the presidential contest, Senator Conkling will be a candidate for the nomination and his friends in New York will see that he secures the delegation from that state if possible.

Jay Gould's Plans.

CHICAGO, January 29.—The Times says it is believed Jay Gould's main object at present is to secure the control of all roads which have California routes in their charter. He will next turn his attention to the St. Louis, San Francisco and Iron Mountain roads, the only ones which he fears his rivals may use against him.

New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, January 29.—Stocks were irregular throughout the day, although fluctuations were confined within narrow limits, except in the case of the Central Pacific, which advanced from 81¾ in early dealings, and subsequently reacted to 83.

There was a more general trade in mining shares to day The Little Pittsburg was strong, and the Central Arizona steady. The Commercial says the Leadville, which had been pruned down yesterday to 3 25 by insiders, before the close rose to 3 50. The early sales today were at 3 60, from which there was a rise to 3 75 bid. When the Carbonate, Shamrock, and Little Giant are all consolidated in the Leadville it should be as valuable as the Little Pittsburg.

In the excitement of the first hour only part of the actual transactions made in Central Pacific were reported over the stock telegraph or printed on the official list.

Colony Scheme.

NEW YORK, January 29. A co-operative colony is forming in Brooklyn for the purpose of settling on government land in the vicinity of Puget Sound. A meeting to promote the movement was held in Union Hall. It was addressed by Dr. P. H. Vanderweyde, editor of the Practical American, and E. V. Smalley.

Death of a German Theologian.

ST. LOUIS, January 29.—Rev. Adolph Baltzer, president of the German Evangelical Synod of North America, professor of theology at the German Evangelical Theological school, near Martersville Mo., and editor in chief of the Friendensbate, died at St. Charles, Missouri, Wednesday night, of heart disease, aged 62 years. He was a classmate and great admirer of Prince Bismark, and came to this country when quite a young man.

FOREIGN.

Cold Weather in Switzerland.

GENEVA, January 29.—For the fourth time in the present century, Lake Zurich is frozen over. Lakes Coral, Neufchatel and Bienne, and the River Arve are also frozen over.

Germany and the Church.

BERLIN, January 29.—The budget of the ministry of public worship will come up for discussion next week in the Prussian diet. It is generally believed that Bismarck will take the opportunity of giving an explanation upon the church question. Negotiations with the vatican have arrived at such a critical point that the help of the diet must be called in. The news that a concordat will shortly be concluded is judged here to be false. There is however no doubt that the minister of public worship will soon lay before the Prussian diet bills amending the May laws, but it is thought that no question of reserve to church here of foreign independence will be raised.

Great Fire at Jassy.

BUCHAREST, January 29. The great fire at Jassy, which destroyed the administrative palace, is still raging, and the flames have extended to the adjacent building. A large number of records, which cannot be replaced, were destroyed in the palace.

A Bad Move.

VIENNA, January 29. In consequence of the recent riots in Pesth the president of the council and minister of the interior is preparing bills to be presented to the legislature restricting the rights of associations and public meetings and the liberty of the press.

Von Moltke's War.

BERLIN, January 29. Count Von Moltke, chief marshal of the German empire, in reply to a correspondent who requested him to use his influence with the emperor for a reduction of the army, writes as follows: The power of the emperor cannot impress all nations with the conviction that even a victorious war is a national misfortune. That conviction can only be the result of the moral education of nations, the fruit of which we shall neither of us live to see.

2,000 Soldiers go Down in a Transport.

NEW YORK, January 29. The Graphic publishes a dispatch from Odessa, containing the rumor that a Russian transport vessel with two thousand troops aboard, has been lost in the Caspian and most, if not all the soldiers perished.

Fire in Dublin.

DUBLIN, January 29.—A fire broke out in the biscuit factory here to night, and is raging violently. The flames are spreading rapidly, and the damage has already reaches $250,000

Russian Press on German Army Bill.

LONDON, January 29.—The Journal de St. Petersburg does not consider that the German army bill implies a departure from a peaceful policy. The Moscow Gazette thinks that the bill is exclusively directed against France. The Gazette de St. Petersburg believes that Russia is menaced, while the Galois holds that Poland is the bone of contention.

The Cincinnati Commercial thinks "third" termism is not tinged with the roseate hues of an exuberant vitality.

Our senators should support the Bayard resolution, if they want to represent the sentiments of their constituents.

The News thinks Judge Belford is weakening on the Indian Question. He has not said "The Utes must go" for two weeks.

We republish in another column an article from the Leadville Herald on the coming state convention. It contains many good suggestions.

The Herald admits that Dr. Taylor has made a satisfactory defense to the charge that he had drawn more fees than he was entitled to as county commissioner.

The mistake of the fusionists in Maine was in their first appeal to the courts. A party that premeditates an injustice should never seek the sanction of justice.

We are glad to state that Mr. John Arkins of the Leadville Chronicle has improved in health so that he is convalescent. He will spend a few days in Denver.

The Colorado State Lottery still declines to say who drew the $30,000 prize, or even the $10,000 or $5,000 prizes. The silence is as suspicious as the style of business.

The college presidents are being appealed to to help swell the Grant boom. Denver Republican.

They do so by declaring a third term inadvisable.

The Colorado delegation ought to cast its vote in the republican national convention for the candidate who can carry the close states. This will show political sagacity.

The New York Mail makes fun of the absurd views of the Denver News on the railroad question. The News simply carries out protective tariff views in railroading.

It is proper for those people who sent money through the mail to the Colorado state lottery, in expectation of drawing a $30,000 prize to return thanks to Postmaster-General Keys in ordering their letters stopped. He saved them so much money.

Governor Pitkin's evidence to day before the Ute commison will reveal startling facts. Denver News.

We shall earnestly look for these startling facts in the telegraph. Governor Pitkin has been promising them for a long time.

The News as we predicted has found fault with Senator Hill's efforts to obtain public buildings for Denver. The News wanted Senator Hill to ask for an appropriation of a million dollars more or less which, it is perfectly clear, cannot be obtained. Senator Hill, like the practical statesman he is, has asked for what he thinks he can get. If Senator Hill gets the appropriation, we will be generous enough to give the News our sympathy.

The Colorado Springe GAZETTE does not want the railroad question to cut any figure in politics. How can it be prevented if a narrow gauge law is to be presented to the next legislature? Leadville Herald.

By opposing it, as every sensible Coloradoan will. The people of Colorado cannot afford to make any distinction between narrow and broad gauge railroads. We are for free trade in railroads as in everything else.

The pressure to open up the Indian territory will grow with each succeeding year. But it is the only Indian reservation that is not liable to mineral excitement. It cannot be maintained none of them can. Hence the rapidity with which the proposition to make every Indian a citizen and give him a farm to start with, will grow. It will astonish the army and Indian rings. Denver News.

This is the policy outlined by Secretary Schurz in his annual report. We have always claimed that the press that has been attacking him so bitterly would soon recognize the wisdom of his policy. By the way Schurz tried to secure the passage of a bill for the removal of the Utes a year ago. He was before Belford about one year.

Senator Logan thinks Hayes' civil service reform is a humbug because he declined to remove a man against whom as a public officer, no just complaint can be made, and put in one of Logan's friends. The friends of Conkling in New York and of Butler in Massachusetts are also convinced that civil service reform is a humbug as the New York and Boston custom houses have reduced their expenses 35 per cent. and have no sinecure positions for political workers.

The Denver Times has the following on the records of the two parties in national finances, which may be regarded as a pointer to our two senators as to the manner in which they should vote on the Bayard resolution: "The honorable record of the republican party in protecting the national credit, in paying the war debt, in funding bonds at a lower rate of interest, in bringing the greenback to par, in restoring specie to its proper place on the basis of credit, and of all commercial transactions, and in defeating all the repudiation schemes of the democracy, will be brought clearly to light and distinctly impressed upon the popular mind; while the exactly opposite facts in regard to the democracy their attempts to violate the national faith, their ill concealed desire for repudiation, their efforts to embarrass the funding operations of the secretary, their opposition to specie payments, and the consequent elevation of the greenback to par will all be demonstrated, and brought fresh to the public understanding."

The Coming Convention.

The various papers of the state have all suggested some one for nomination at the coming state convention. Now, it is impossible for all the gentlemen named to secure the positions asked for, and the suggestion is patent that all of these "booms" for individuals, many of whom are practically unknown to the voters of the state, are productive of no good. Of course it is the privilege of every individual or newspaper to name a suitable man for an office, but the mere mention of a man for a place on the ticket, does not argue that he is the only man capable of filling the office. It is extremely probable that if all of the candidates mentioned were to cease to exist the convention would have little difficulty in filling the ticket with good, responsible men. The opportunity makes the man, and not the newspaper or the claims of his friends. If candidates are to be nominated by the convention it should be without outside pressure, which usually has for a basis some individual or local interest, aside from the best interests of the party. Already in some parts of the state measures have been taken looking to the election of delegates to the convention. In one of the southern counties the delegates have been actually selected by an informal caucus of republicans, and the arrangements made to have the appointments ratified. This step was taken because a movement was discovered which had for its object the appointment of a list of delegates pledged in a certain interest, in which leading democratic politicians had a very large hand, and the movement promised so much of a success that it became necessary to take time by the forelock and secure the placing of none but staunch republicans on guard. And, this brings us to the main point at issue. There is and has been for some time a movement on foot to secure the nomination by the republican convention of certain candidates who, it is thought, will be objectionable to the party at large, and then work up an independent ticket to distract the party. It is almost needless to say that this scheme had its origin in the democratic party. The Herald is in possession of documentary evidence showing that such a scheme is on foot, and that the seeds of tare are being thus early sown in the republican field. Fortunately, however, the republican husbandman is not asleep, and the plot has been discovered in time not to prevent defeat, for the republican party will march to victory under any set of candidates, but to prevent possible soreness and disaffection. When the time comes, the main design of this plot will be disclosed, with names and particulars. With no chance of success to look forward to in a straight contest with the republican party, the democratic programme is to take a hand in the choice of delegates to the state convention, and then stir up discussion. This is the secret of the constant efforts of the Denver News, to create a bitter feeling between the prominent men of the republican party, and the frequent reference to republican plans, that have their origin in the sanctum of that paper. The republican party of Colorado is so firmly welded together, that the caution is perhaps unnecessary, but there is no divining the success that may attend the well-directed efforts of the machiavellian leaders of the democrats, who have received a most thorough training in the arts of political diplomacy, in their plots and counter plots against each other. The pressing requirement, just at present, is to secure a convention of honorable, high-minded men, who will choose such candidates as will best conserve the interests of the party, for the fact must not be lost sight of that with an early convention and a long campaign, if by any possible chance the democracy should succeed in the injection of treachery into the party ranks, it would have a long time to work and might lead to defeat, and democratic success. Colorado republicans have had one experience in political treachery, from which they only recovered after years of hard work; anything looking to a repitition of the dose should be mercilessly squelched. Leadville Herald.

President Hayes must be popular among the Jews, since the Jewish Messenger is pleased to speculate concerning his ancestry, as follows: "It is said that one of the Storrs family in the eighteenth century married Dr. Joseph Jacobs, who was an ancestor of the Burchards President Hayes' connection. Song of the Breeze.

As Sung by the Major General in "The Pirates of Penzance."

Softly sighing to the river
Comes the lowly breeze,
Setting nature all a quiver,
Rustling thro' the trees,
Thro' the trees.
And the brook, in gentle measure,
Laughs for very love,
While the poplars in their pleasure
Wave their arms above.
Yes, the trees in very pleasure,
Wave their leafy arms above.

Yet the breeze is but a rover;
When he wings away
Brook and poplar mourn a lover,
Sighing well a day!
Well-a-day!
Ah, the wooing and undoing
That the rogue could tell!
When the breeze is out a wooing,
Who can woo so well!
Ah, the tales the tongue could tell!
Nobody could woo so well!

W. S. GILBERT.

"O Smoker of the Weed."

A poem of detestation of tobacco, written by a Turkoman poet of the last century, named Machdumkuli, has been translated by Professor Vambery, of Hungary, for the Journal of the German Oriental Society. The author's countrymen are a nation of smokers:

God has put thee in the world with a will, 'tis agreed;
Do then what thou willest O smoker of the weed!
But before the Judge's throne, on the awful day, take heed!
What hast thou for apology, O smoker of the weed?

The body—it is shrunken, thy strength is fled away;
Thou babblest, but thy intellect is fallen to decay;
Thy nerves are stirred with twitches, thy limbs a scratching need;
These are now thy symptoms, O smoker of the weed!

Such crooked ways must damn thee in heaven as well as here;
If thou be man, abjure them, and to the right adhere.
By the side of him who prays not, the liar and the thief,
Will stand the wretched smoker on the last great day of grief.
Oh Machdumkuli, God is dearer far than earthly day,
The Pipe is only bitterness—the body is but clay;
Sin is the Fox of subtle guile—but in the time of need,
The Fox will not avail thee, O smoker of the weed!

Howells at Home.

Mr. Howells is a very accessible man as the phrase goes. He never assumes a lofty editorial demeanor and he treats young and unknown writers with a simple cordiality and kindness that seldom miss appreciation though now and then youthful heads may be turned by it. The simplicity of his manner sometimes leads self-confident people to imagine they can impose their plans and ideas upon him without much trouble. But, for all his good nature, he is a shrewd and careful business man in editorial matters, and these people soon discover their mistake. As he comes into the room, you notice that he is small of person, stooping slightly in the shoulders, but of pleasant presence. He wears his hair parted in the middle, as his photographs show him, but somehow one feels that this is merely a matter of convenience, and not a concession to the fashion which descended upon the heads of sundry feeble-minded youth of the country, twenty years ago, and is still known to influence their successors. His whole appearance and manner are perfectly free from affection. His thick moustache, which now begins to feel the first frost of life, and his square, resolute jaw, would give him almost a belligerent look, where it not for a peaceful and slightly preoccupied air about him, that indicates the man of letters, the author busy watching his own thoughts and classifying his impressions. His eye lights up at once on seeing us, and his smile at all times, especially at any stroke of wit or description of a comical situation, is one of such thorough enjoyment and sympathy that it is difficult not to stop and watch it as being in itself equal to a good conversation.

Possibly it is a knowledge of his Venetian residence and his various writings on Italy that leads us to fancy something Italian in the effect of his face, with his slight brown tint and jovous smile. Yet he could scarcely be taken for anything but an American. In spite of a sedentary and bookish life he shows the youthfulness, vigor and intensity which belong to the faces of western men. While we are chatting his children come in, two girls and a boy, who seem to have free entrance to the study. The eldest, a daughter fourteen or or fifteen years old, already shows decided literary talent, and has published some of her poetry in the St. Nicholas magazine. They flit in and out as naturally as bees about the hive. Probably there are moments or hours when the key turns in the lock, and the author confines himself to the society of his imaginary men and women, but in general the children enter into their father's life very wholesomely and easily. This is always a good sign of the freshness of a man's heart. It is impossible to describe Mr. Howell's conversation. It is as light, facile and often as witty as his style in writing, but everything is said without effort to impress. There is no straining to keep up a reputation, as in the case of of some literary men. It has been complained of that Mr. Howells does not put deep thoughts into his books, and avoids the seriousness of great passions. Sometimes the same thing may be noticed in his talk. Not by any means that he is frivolous, but he turns off serious discussion with a light foil of kindly cynicism or laughter. It is not the attitude of a man who does not think, but more like that of one who does not care always to think aloud. In general he reserves his deeper meditations for himself, as every one has a right to do. The plane on which he oftenest meets people is one of sensible, considerate, well-balanced reflection on life and books, enlivened by humor and averse to the tediousness of argument. In society, he is one of the most charming and profitable of talkers, but, strange as it may seem in a describer of contemporary life, he does not go much into society.

An Anecdote of the President.

I had a pleasant conversation this evening with Mr. James Aigin, one of Delaware's most respected pioneers, during which I learned the following noteworthy anecdote of President Hayes, which I think has never been published. It will be remembered that this is the president's birthplace, and that his early boyhood days were spent circling among the pioneers of this city. It was a bright day in September, 1844. The great Clay-Polk campaign was waxing warm. Mr. Aigin, then as now a resident of Delaware, was standing in front of the Tremont House in Boston watching the preliminaries of the great Clay demonstration on the occasion of Cassius M. Clay's memorable speech before the Henry Clay Club of that city. Mr. Hayes at that time was attending Harvard Law School at Cambridge, and having gone to the Hub to witness the demonstration, accidentally met and recognized Mr. Aigin as a citizen of Delaware, and introduced him to his chum, a student in law from Mansfield, whose name he has forgotten. They were soon joined by Mr. Birchard, of whom the president is a namesake. In accordance with the customs of those days a grand civil parade was a chief feature of the occasion. The great motley-bannered procession was being praised on all sides when young Hayes suggested that one thing more was necessary to make its success complete, namely, an "Ohio delegation." It was received as a happy jest, and nothing more was thought of it until Mr. Hayes, who had already been missed, appeared, carrying a rude banner which he had hastily constructed from a strip split from the edge of a board, across which near the top was nailed a board, on either side of which, in awkward, straggling letters, was painted the word "Ohio."

As the column passed, Mr. Hayes, armed with this banner, took the lead, and the four fell in, and brought up the rear. Proud Ohio men swell their ranks, until, when the procession came to a halt on Boston Common, the "Ohio delegation," numbered twenty four men, and was one of the most conspicuous in the procession. The enthusiasm was great, and floral tributes were showered upon them from the numerous balcony windows along the line of march. Among these tributes were several wreaths. These the young leader carefully placed over the rude banner, and the unexpected "Ohio delegation," proudly marching under a crown of laurel wreaths, was cheered and honored as Ohio had never been honored before. This was probably the first appearance as a political leader, and Mr. Aigin thinks it was the proudest and happiest day of General Hayes' life. "Were there any other delegations foreign to Massachusetts?" "I remember one," said Mr. Aigin, as he removed his spectacles. "A single man marched, solemnly behind us, carrying a flag, on either side of which was pinned a piece of muslin bearing the inscription, 'Tennessee—We Are at Home Doing our Duty.'" From a Delaware, Ohio, Letter to the Cincinnati Commercial.

Odd Dinner Customs in Sweden.

The Swedes have a queer way of locomotion at their meals. They often flit about like flies, from one table to another, and sometimes seem to turn the menu topsy-turvy when they order a repast. It is no rare thing to see them begin with cheese and biscuit, next proceed to ham and salad, with a slice of meat to follow, and then start up in the middle of their dinner to swallow while they walk about, a plateful of pea soup. A habit which they have of beginning each repast with what they call a "smorgos," not merely leads to much untidiness at meal time, but makes them seem contented to live on bits and scraps. The smorgos consists of little dishes, such as slices of smoked reindeer, and caviar, and sardines, with pickles, cheese, and other whets provocative of thirst. These are fished out with a fork of general utility, and laid on thumb pieces of rye cake thickly smeared with butter, which serve by way of plate. Then they are bitten into, regardless of the fragments which may fall on other dainties (for your true smorgos eater seldom sits to his repast), and they are finally washed down with a glass or two of spirits which stand handy at their side. Such a prelude to a meal is not merely uncleanly, but must vitiate the palate and injure the digestion. Indeed I feel convinced that were the smorgosbord abolished not merely would the cookery in Sweden soon improve but very many of the people would be gradually weaned from their weakness for strong drink. All the Year Round.

What the Coroner's Jury Say.

The county coroner held an inquest yesterday afternoon upon the dead body of J. J. Lyon, who met his death in the sudden and shocking manner related in the GAZETTE of yesterday.

A jury was impannelled and Mr. J. M. Bolton, Dr. Sanford and Dr. Marlow were summoned as witnesses. Their testimony was substantially the same as the account of the accident already given in the GAZETTE. The jury after a brief consultation rendered the following verdict:

"An inquisition holden at Colorado Springs, El Paso county, on the 29th day of January, A. D. 1880, before G. H. Stewart, coroner of said county, upon the dead body of J. J. Lyon, lying there dead by the jurors, whose names are hereto subscribed, the said jurors upon their oaths do say the said J. J. Lyon came to his death by accidentally falling down stairs, on the the evening of January 28, 1880, in the Hodgman block, in the city of Colorado Springs.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, The said jurors have hereunto set their hands, the day and year aforesaid

J. H. WOODGATE,
J. M. BOLTON,
CHAS. A. LEE,
JOHN E. WHEELER,
C. L. WOODRING,
JOHN N. BEALL.

No post mortem examination was made, as it was perfectly evident that death had ensued as a consequence of an accidental fall, and there was no necessity of further investigation.

A telegraphic dispatch has been received from the young man's father, who resides in Mobile, Alabama, directing that the body be decently interred in the cemetery of Colorado Springs.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Westerfield's undertaking rooms.

No Room Left for Discussion.

For some little time there has been a rather unpleasant discussion as to certain matters connected with Grace church and its relations to its rector, the Rev. J. F. Walker. The correspondence which we lay before our readers this morning is sufficiently definite to require no further comment.

COLORADO SPRINGS, January 23, 1880.

Rev. J. F. Walker:

MY DEAR MR. WALKER: Reports were circulated here some time since that you left Grace church because we did not pay you promptly, or regularly, or something of that nature. Added to that, latterly it has been reported that we did not treat you kindly this as another reason why you left. Now, of course, I know that you never have made any such statements, and that they are not true, but I think it is desirable that you should have an opportunity of contradicting them, if you wish, and write to you more on your than on account of Grace church congregation.

Yours very sincerely,

D. RUSS WOOD.

TOPEKA, KAN., Jan. 26, 1880.

My Dear Mr. Wood:

I was greatly surprised at the contents of your letter, received this morning. No such reports as these which you say are being circulated, (as that I left Grace church because I was not promptly paid, or because I was not well treated) ever came from me, nor have they the slightest foundation in truth. On the contrary, I feel to day as I have always felt, that if any two things are eminently true of my residence and rectorship in Colorado Springs, they are these two things:

First That I was always paid more than I earned, and Second That I was always treated better than I deserved.

I will add to this now that I have reason to believe that my salary was paid more promptly and more willingly than the salary of any other minister of our church in the diocese of Colorado, and to know that it was paid, always, in season to meet all my obligations promptly, and also to know that it was paid more promptly than my salary was ever paid in any parish I ever served in a ministry of thirty-eight years' duration, with one exception, and that Grace church, Colorado Springs, does not come behind that exception, even, but is fully equal to it in promptness in all its financial relations to me.

I am unfeignedly sorry that any evil-minded person should seek to injure the reputation of Grace church by such sheer fabrications. Besides it is a reproach upon me that I could be so insensible to the long-suffering of Grace church parish, and its unwearied kindness to me in my invalid condition. I always felt and said with the apostle. "I was with you in weakness," and yet you tried to make me feel, in your generous forbearance, that I was doing you good service. I hope indeed that my feeble work there has not been in vain. I try to feel sometimes, that, with all my weakness, I did you some good. I pray it may not all be destroyed by such reports as those to which you refer, which tend to break up the friendly relations of the parish toward a former rector, and so cause his good to be evil spoken of.

I want you to make any use of this letter you see fit. I have written in a sorrow that I have not felt for years. I am so glad you have a rector once more, I trust he will be very useful. Let me assure him through you, that you will rally round him and sustain him in words and work God bless you all and prosper you temporally and spiritually. Remember me to all.

Yours since ely,

J. F. WALKER.

WHY HE THREATENED TO SHOOT.

Peculiar Educational Methods in Leadville.

Under the title of "Perils of a Pedagogue," we gave in yesterday's GAZETTE the story of the troubles of Mr. B. F. Jay, county superintendent of schools of Lake county, and acting principal of the Leadville public schools, who was prevented from taking his position as teacher last Monday morning by Dr. Stuart, president of the school board, who "held him up" with a pistol. To-day we give Dr. Stuart's side of the story, which we find in the Chronicle. Dr. Stuart, when interviewed, said: "I am president of the board of education. This is now a third class district, and will not be raised in grade until after the next census. No salary is allowed the members of the board, but an office is provided for me, the rent of $75 being paid out of the school fund. I am also allowed office furniture. The board hires all teachers, and the other members have delegated this authority to me. But one teacher is now employed who has no certificate. It is customary to do this, temporary certificates being granted in order that they may draw their pay until a regular examination day.

"Mr. Jay was not a regular teacher. He was put in Mr. Nelson's place in the high school as a supply teacher only. I notified him Saturday that he could teach there no longer, and went to the building on Monday morning to see that he did not get in. I warned him away."

Here the reporter asked the doctor if he was armed at that time.

"I have nothing to say about that," said the doctor. "I told him to come no nearer at his peril. Mr. Jay has for two weeks past been importuning me to appoint him principal of the high school. On or about January 18th he came to my office and said that he would tell me something I did no know. He said there was $18,000 dollars in the school fund and that we might as well have our share of it as not. He said that if I would appoint him principal of the High School (you see he did not doubt my authority then) he would give me twenty-five dollars out of each month's wages. He said it would not do for us to fall out. I told him he was drawing $800 per year from the county and $70 per month from the school, and that he did not be satisfied that I did not think him qualified for the position, and should not get it by my influence. His claim that I am insane seems to have entered his mind just here."

"Jay took the place of Mrs. Westcott in the high school, after refusing to give her a certificate. The case was taken out of his hands, and is now being considered by the state superintendent. Jay now refuses a certificate to Mrs. Kneeland, who is principal of the high school, and is a lady of culture and education. The schools are now in excellent condition and everything is running smoothly. I desire parents and all interested, to call and see for themselves."

Golconda Cast In the Shade.

A mysterious miner by the name of Millard told a friend of his last summer a mysterious story concerning some wonderful prospects he had discovered in the Ute reservation. The Leadville Chronicle prints this story with comments and additions. Millard's story is as follows: "In the spring of 1870 I was making my way from Fort Garland, in southern Colorado, back to my old stamping ground in California gulch. The route I marked out for myself was through the heart of the Ute reservation, a pathless waste to all white men. I had not traveled far when I was met by Indians who warned me that I was traveling upon forbidden ground and must get out of the reservation. I explained to them that I was not mining or prospecting, but only seeking a short route to my destination across the country, and they allowed me to proceed, but told me that I would be closely watched, and that any attempt to prospect for gold or silver, would cause them to kill me. I hurried on, and when I reached a point about eighty miles from where Leadville now is, I saw that I was passing through a country rich in placer mines, and perhaps in quartz. I saw Indians on the cliffs occasionally, and dared not prospect. One day in crossing a mountain I noticed a large vein of free gold quartz out-cropping, which was very rich. I picked up a fine piece, but just then a bullet whizzed passed my head and I pushed on. The mountain I found it on is of peculiar shape, and I can find it again. I also saw indications of silver lodes, but had no time to look at them."

Millard concluded his story by giving his friend a description of the placer fields and the mountains on which he found the gold, as well as directions where to go to find both.

Last night a Chronicle reporter met at one of our hotels the man who nursed Millard and received the information in return for his kindness. The gentleman was very reticent, and would give nothing until he had exacted a promise that his name should not be mentioned. His story was substantially as follows:

"It was in the latter part of October that I secured two companions and two ponies, and with six weeks' provisions, started for the new treasure fields. I dare not tell you what direction we took, what streams we followed or crossed. You must be content with the knowledge that we found the placer mines, found rich silver mines, and satisfied ourselves so well of the the richness of the region that we are going back as soon as possible—not later than the first of March at the farthest.

We were absent about six weeks. After reaching the reservation line we traveled three days, penetrating the reservation about forty miles. Here we found ourselves in what I believe to be the richest mineral country in the world. We picked up float spar which was full of native silver, and we found an immense mound of galena, evidently rich in silver, which is certainly the largest chimney of mineral ever discovered. We did not find the gold-lead which Millard mentioned, but the mountain he described it as being located upon, but we did find the placers. One of us dug while the other took pans and washed the dirt. Three holes were dug, the deepest being less than three feet, and no bed rock found in either one. We washed three pans of dirt. The poorest one yielded seven dollars and forty cents in heavy shot gold, and the best one, nine dollars and seventy-five cents in the same kind of gold. Just as we finished washing out this gold, we saw some Indians coming. Soon they fired upon us, and although we were out of reach of their rifles, we concluded to leave, and waited for no second request. The redskins followed us to the reservation lines, shooting at us occasionally, but we escaped unharmed. As I said before, we are preparing for another visit to the same place, and shall not return until we have secured some of the wealth which awaits us there. I think the Indians were watching us all the time we were on the reservation. We did not shoot at them for the reason that they never came near enough to kill. There is plenty of water in the placer country. We returned to Leadville about the middle of November. By the route we took the distance from Leadville to the placer field is about 120 miles, although it is not over eighty miles in an air line."

MINING NOTES.

We are indebted to the Leadville Herald for the following mining notes:

Mr. W. S. Ward, the general manager of the Evening Star Mining company, of Carbonate hill, having returned from New York and resumed the management of the property is pushing the development as fast possible. At the time, in the latter part of December, when word came from New York to stop taking out the ore and only proceed with sinking the shafts, the cause was not generally understood. It was this: Where the shaft had cut the ore body, and the drifts had been continued in on it, the vein was found to pitch downward, thus necessitating several times handling the ore before it could be brought to the shaft ready for raising to the surface. So expensive was this, that it was deemed more advisable to continue the shaft on down to a proper depth, and then extend a level in under the ore. At the same time the shaft above, four hundred feet to the east and higher up the hill is also being sunk. The main shaft in the main working building is now down 225 feet and the upper shaft 260 feet. This last named shaft will undoubtedly strike the same large ore body in which the Morning Star has been working, and it is supposed a depth of about 500 feet will be required. When these two shafts are down to the required depths, and connected by a main level, the mine will again be in excellent shape to again produce ore in large quantities. Mr. Ward is fortunate in having a conservative company behind him, that is more anxious to put the mine in excellent shape, and endeavor to prepare to mine cheaply, than to hang him with dividends. The present is also an opportune time to prosecute this kind of dead work, as it is called for this market is at present flooded with ore, and the prices paid by the smelters will undoubtedly advance next spring and summer when fuel becomes cheaper. It will probably take two months yet before Mr. Ward will be prepared to take out any considerable quantity of ore, but the ore body is known to exist, and the present developments are only to facilitate matters in its production. The mine will soon again be numbered among the largest producers in the camp.

East from the Robert E. Lee are the Olive Branch, El Paso, and Kennebec, also all under the management of Mr. W. S. Ward.

The Olive Branch is on the extreme northeast end of Fryer Hill, and the shaft is 206 feet deep. Much trouble is experience with water, and it is proposed to put in a four inch Cornish pump. The shaft is being sunk as rapidly as possible.

The El Paso is directly east from the Olive Branch, and on the western slope of Yankee Hill, or rather on the flat between the two hills. The main shaft is 274 feet deep, and has been sunk to this depth by the use of a whim. Further work with this power for hoisting was found impracticable, so a new ten horse power engine has been put up, and will be started to day.

The Kennebec shaft is 249 feet deep, and still worked by a whim. Strange to say, no water is encountered in this shaft, although found all about it. The shaft is still in porphyry.

On the northeast end of Fryer hill, near the Olive Branch, are the Bangkok and Union Emma. On both properties shafts are being sunk as rapidly as possible. On the Bangkok, a four-inch Cornish pump is being put up.

Near the Kennebec, the Aztec, owned principally by Colorado Springs parties, is being actively worked. The steam hoister, and machinery are working well

Up the side of Yankee hill, the Little Miami is being actively worked, since the new twenty-horse power engine has been running. The machinery is about the best on the hill, and work is being prosecuted by both sinking and drifting.

"Near the top of the hill, above the Little Miami, and adjoining the Chieftain, is the Scooper, which has been idle since the sixteenth of september law as has been before stated in the Herald. Other reports published, that it is and has been regularly producing ten tons of ore daily are untrue. The bond on the mine will expire on the sixteenth of February, when the mine will be started up. A large body of very rich ore, is known to exist in the mine.

The Chieftain has large bodies of ore developed, and although no effort is being made to produce large quantities, but simply to continue drifts for explorations, about twenty tons are daily mined. This property will be among the largely productive next summer.

Denver is having parlor lectures on classical subjects. The Denver newspapers report "classical audiences" as present at these lectures.

A farmer living near Denver thinks the body discovered on Sunday up Cherry creek may possibly be that of his brother who left Lake City with a team and $1,000 in his pocket, and has not since been heard from.
